

I am an avid listener to XM Instant Traffic and Weather whenever I travel. It is a wonderful service and I can't see how it would hurt local (FM or AM) stations that also broadcast traffic and weather information. The reports on XM are no longer than 3 or 4 minutes and then I turn the channel. Usually the stations I used to rely on for such information are local talk radio stations that do not have such reports continuously over and over like XM, so XM is very convenient. However, I do find the talk radio stations informative and will still listen to them after I have listened to the weather and traffic report. And I still listen to the commercials on those local talk stations as well. It's just nice to have the ability to be able to get weather and traffic when I want it, not when the station wants to give it to me. Please don't take that away.
